24	Then I get into bed and stay there for five days.
25	"Take a shower, Davey," my mother says, on the night before school starts. "Wash your hair. I'll bet it's been ten days. That's not like you." It's been thirteen days. Thirteen days since I've bathed.
52	He's probably a junkie. He probably comes to the canyon to shoot up, I think, or to trip or just get stoned.
148	"Do you know how high the rape statistics are in this town?" she whispers. ..."Nobody's going to rape you in the middle of the afternoon, in the middle of town."
149	"They're all like that," Jane says anyway. "They're all out to rape Anglo girls."
169	I was afraid of you, that first day in the canyon. I was planning to bash in your head with a rock, if you made a false move. Lucky for you, you didn't. ...I like the idea of an afterlife but I can't bring myself to really believe in it.
175	I smell the booze on her breath. "Have you been drinking?" I say. Of course she has. Why do I bother to ask. "Just a teensy-weensy bit," Jane says, giggling. It is not the first time that Jane has gotten drunk in school.
183	"You have a drinking problem," I tell her. "I can stop anytime I want to," she says. ...Miriam turns out to be about forty. She is my height and somewhat overweight, but in a sexy way. Her shirt is unbuttoned enough so that you can tell she isn't wearing any bra and when she walks across the room her breasts jiggle.
192	"Because you have a drinking problem." "I told you before. I can stop any time I want to. I don't have to drink. I do it because I like it."
210	She has admitted that she has a drinking problem. She took a test in one of those pamphlets I gave her and the results proved that she has alcoholic tendencies and might actually be an alcoholic.
